

I understand translators may be forced off the air if LPFM is allowed. I listen almost exclusively to public stations on transmitters, both NPR and KLOVE. I would hate to lose the programming that they offer which I don't find on other stations. I enjoy having international news in the morning and positive music during the day. My car is not designed with a computer, so could listen to neither of them during the day, as a home health provider, if they are off the air. Please preserve the option of translators for public radio stations. Thank you.
